The Rise of Chapecoense

Chapecoense was founded in 1973 in the small city of Chapecó, in the southern Brazilian state of Santa Catarina. The club spent its early years playing in the lower divisions of Brazilian football. In 2009, Chapecoense won promotion to the Campeonato Brasileiro Série B, the second tier of Brazilian football. The club then won promotion to the Campeonato Brasileiro Série A, the top tier of Brazilian football, in 2014.

Chapecoense's rise to the top of Brazilian football was a remarkable story. The club had a small budget and a relatively unknown squad.
